

WHITMORE LAKE HIGH SCHOOL: 2010 ILIAD

CLASS / STUDENT / PARENT CONTRACT

Your son/daughter has chosen to take yearbook and become a member of the Iliad staff. Students are required to take at least two trimesters of yearbook, with one of those being 1st trimester. This class takes mature, motivated, and conscientious students. To ensure his/her success in this course, it is important that both you and your student understand the basis for grading and the seriousness of our deadlines. The following is a course description for yearbook:

Yearbook is open to selected sophomores, juniors, and seniors with a GPA of 2.0 or better. Acceptable recommendations from a current English teacher, business or computer teacher, and/or another teacher of an academic class may and are often used in the selection process. A grading policy information contract must be signed by the student and parent.

The class is based on two important concepts:

1. Students are required to sell business ads as a part of their grade. The sale of these business ads is critical as they serve as a large portion of the manner in which we fund the publication of our yearbook. Each student is encouraged to start early in the first trimester to accomplish this task. While we understand that students are involved in a number of activities, starting early and making use of available time is going to be vital to them accomplishing their task. First trimester grades will be determined upon completion of in-class assignments, tests/quizzes, page deadlines, as well as the student's required ad sales.
2. Students must be able to work effectively as a team with other staff members and the advisor.

In addition to the completion of class assignments, quizzes/tests, student projects, and ad sales, students are also expected to meet the pre-set deadlines for yearbook page completions. There are several deadlines, the first of which typically occurs in late October or early November. Given that the work has met acceptable publishing standards* maximum grades will be earned based on the following schedule:

Page(s) accepted on or before the deadline date = 100%
Page(s) accepted one day after the deadline date = 90%
Page(s) accepted two days after the deadline date = 80%
Page(s) accepted three days after the deadline date = 70%
Page(s) accepted four days after the deadline date = 60%
Page(s) accepted five or more days after the deadline date = 0

*Acceptable publishing standards includes the student's layout(s) is/are done without major errors, have been thoroughly proofed, and is ready to submit.

After all pages are turned in, there remains quite a bit of work to do by the advisor and/or editor to prepare each layout for electronic submission, or shipment to the publisher.

As in any journalistic production, our publisher, Walsworth Publishing, sets the number of completed pages and the deadlines in order for our book to be completed and delivered on time. On average, each student will be responsible for 2-4 pages per deadline. There is ample time for completion of each deadline, providing the student stays on top of their work, does not procrastinate, and does not use yearbook class time as a study hall (which most likely comes about as a result of their choice to not complete homework the night before or poor planning). Each deadline day missed can delay our book being returned and will result in additional charges. It is of utmost importance that all pages for a deadline are completed on time for submission to the publisher. (Every high school's yearbook has the same criteria to follow, not just ours.) Consequently, no student may drop yearbook during trimester 2 or 3 because page assignments are made in early September for the entire year. If a student were to drop the class, his/her workload would fall to the other students, which would then place an unfair burden on them. Students are responsible for completing all of his/her assigned pages. An incomplete will be given for 1st trimester until all work is finished.

Over the past few years, I have found that a few students don't understand how serious a deadline is even though the deadline dates are posted well in advance. As a result, the following restriction has been imposed for the sake of the whole class and prompt delivery of our book:

If a student's page(s) are not done correctly or completely and not turned in by the previously established deadline date, not only are you causing more work for yourself, you are also causing unneeded (and undesired stress) upon your advisor. Absences are not an excuse for missing a deadline, and academics should take precedence over extra-curricular activities, sports practices, etc. PLAN AHEAD! All main staff members—Editor, Junior Editor, Computer Manager, Division Editors, and Index Editors—are needed before and/or after school to help complete late pages and meet deadlines when necessary.

WORKING ONLINE: This year, students will have the ability to work on their yearbook deadlines anywhere there is an Internet connection. This means that they are not limited to just working on their pages during the yearbook class period. They can work on assignments outside of the classroom. While there may be questions that arise on their pages, not having enough time to complete their page because they were not at school is not acceptable.

Please feel free to call or e-mail if you have any questions at all, or make arrangements with me to visit our yearbook room. I'm looking forward to working with your son/daughter and assisting him/her in producing a memorable yearbook.

Sincerely,

GRADING SCALE

Whitmore Lake High School: 2010 Iliad Class / Student / Parent Contract

Please read this carefully and discuss the criteria with your child. After both you and your son/daughter have signed the contract, it must be returned to Mr. Sprow to be placed on file at the school.

I understand the criteria for grading in yearbook for my son/daughter is based on completing classroom assignments (which will also include quizzes and tests), student projects, meeting pre-set deadlines, and selling approximately $200 in advertisements (A potential for a small increase or decrease exists. This is dependant upon the number of students who are enrolled.) I also understand that my student may not drop yearbook during trimester 2 or 3 and that his/her grade will be based on his/her accurate completion of the above described assignments and deadlines.

I also give my permission to have my student stay before and/or after school in the staff room in order to complete his/her pages(s) to meet the shipping deadline set by the publisher. Absences are not an excuse for missing a deadline. Deadlines are far enough apart, and there is more than enough time in class to complete pages. There are several deadlines throughout the year and students are expected to complete each deadline assignment on time and free from errors. Sports practices, club meetings, doctor appointments, etc. are not acceptable excuses for neglecting to spend extra time before or after school to complete your deadlines, or spending time outside of the school day working on deadlines. Academics take precedence over any and all extra-curricular activities. Procedures and paper work pertaining to detentions and/or school suspensions (if needed) will be managed according to those procedures stated in the student handbook.
